I liked this one:

Ten-year-old Johnnie was demonstrating for his mother some of the things he had learned at school. He was especially proud of the fact he knew Washington had been first President of the country, Lincoln the 16th, and that now Eisenhower holds the office.

"Who," his mother asked, "was President before Eisenhower?"

Johnnie was not sure.

"I'll give you a hint," his mother helped. "He played the piano."

"Oh, I know," Johnnie beamed. "Liberace!"

Lots of gardens have now been plowed, and some have begun planting. We heard of one gardener who got the land ready and the rows all laid off, and reached around to get the 3-pound bag of garden peas to plant—and they weren't there. Later it turned out that a dog had made off with the bag while the gardener wasn't looking. The seed were later located and planted.

TRAFFIC TOLL RATE CAUSES ARE STUDIED

Richmond, March 7.- With 1955's traffic deaths 8.5 per cent above those of 1954, Coolnel C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police and Chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, today called attention to two disturbing trends which contributed heavily to these tragedies. Crashes which accounted for more than one death each rose from 78 which killed 192 people in 1954 to 94 in 1955 which killed 236. In addition, rural crashes involving only one vehicle continued steadily upward to number 12,541 during 1955 and this was the highest total ever recorded.

These single vehicle rural crashes comprised 40 per cent of all rural crashes and marked an unbroken yearly rise in such percentages which dated back to 1944 when the comparable figure was 22 per cent.

The first category, Colonel Woodson said, must include the element of bad luck since the same fatal driver action can kill one person or as many as happen to be riding in the vehicles involved. However, he noted the high score indicates further an increase in dangerous driving habits.

While acknowledging the "single vehicle" classification includes drivers who were forced off the road without contact with another vehicle, Colonel Woodson stated these were at a minimum. "Losing control of an automobile definitely indicates excessive speed, intoxication, dangerous passing, inattention or drowsiness."

"If the true facts could be determined, drowsiness and falling asleep at the wheel would doubtless show up more strongly in our statistics," he said. "However, there is generally no excuse whatsoever for this type of crash and the public must realize that a powerful automobile can be a far more dangerous instrument than a firearm."

"The violations incidental to these two trends," he concluded, "played their parts in necessitating an increasing in State Police arrests for offenses involving the highway from 105,416 in 1954 to 135,-963 in 1955."

WATSON - HAYNES

To strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, as played by Miss Alta Jane Carson, of Mexico, Mo., a cousin of the bride, the wedding party of Miss Mary Beth Haynes daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Thatcher Haynes, of Alexis, and Joseph B. Watson, of Little York, Ill., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Watson, of Appomattox, Va., approached the altar of the Gerlaw Christian church Saturday afternoon. Amidst a setting of baskets of white gladioli and stock and tapers in candelabras, Dr. Charles Speel, of the Monmouth college faculty and pastor of the Little York U. P. church read the double-ring service on the hour of four o'clock.

As Dan G. Brown, of Monmouth and Fred J. Welch, of Little York, friends of the bridegroom, as ushers, and the bridegroom's two sons, William Joseph and Kevin Lynn Watson, as junior ushers, seated the 250 guests, Miss Carson played "Oh Promise Me," "Through the Years," "At Dawning," and "Oh Sweet Mystery of Life."

Wearing a gown of brocaded white satin made on Princess lines and fully skirted to ballerina length, Miss Haynes was given in marriage by her father. The rounded scoop neckline of the wedding gown, which was made by the brides mother, featured the bodice which had long fitted sleeves. A double-tier of sheer veiling fell to shoulder length from a tiera of seed pearls and sequins. A white orchid centered white gladioli in the cascade bridal bouquet.

Mrs. William Burford, of Little York, a close friend of the bride, served as matron of honor. Flower girls were Carol Jane Watson and Phyllis Rae Carson. Wiley F. Hamilton, of Newport News, Va., served as best man.

Miss Haynes was graduated from Alexis High School in 1948 and attended Western Illinois State college in Macomb for two years. She is a member of Beta Sigma Phi business women's sorority in Monmouth and has been employed as deputy in the county clerk's office in Monmouth.

Mr. Watson was graduated from Appomattox, Va. High School and attended Emory and Henry college at Emory, Va. and served in the Navy three years, after which he attended Monmouth college. He is owner and operator of the Watson Lumber Co. in Little York. He is active in the American Legion, in which organization he is a past commander, is a member of the Forty and Eight and the Elks. At present he is serving as supervisor in Sumner township.

NEW BOOK IN COUNTY LIBRARY

JUBILEE, by John Brick, is the dramatic story of Jeff Barnes and the 195th New York, which he trained with merciless discipline, and which first saw action at Gettysburg. But if Jeff was a born leader, he was also a relentless one. By the time he and his men joined Sherman's army at the Battle of Lookout Mountain, not only some of Jeff's soldiers but also his beloved wife, Kate, had grown to resent this man turned martinet. This is the story of a divided nation, of war and the men who fought it. There were those who were courageous and eager for battle, but there were others who knew only the meaning of cold, brute fear. But all experienced the muddy, sleepless exhaustion of the battlefield. Some were rewarded by the taste of victory, but some—quietly or violently—met death. John Brick not only brings to life the fighters of the 195th New York, but also re-creates the stirring events that closed the Civil War.
